

The Better Age.

When, after days of dreary rain, a space
Of clear soft blue, between the parting clouds, Opens on the drenched fields and dripping woods,
The till is of the soil are glad, and say
The storm is overpast, for well they know That in this clear, blue spot, facing the rays
Of sunshine, a brighter shall the opening grow.
As through the throng of clouds the Western wind Goes forth a conqueror, and scatters them, And sweeps them from the glorious cope of heaven.
Thus in the works of mercy that engage
The minds and hands of thousands, we behold Sorrow a blessed future. They who watch Beside the sick beds of the poor, who seek And lead the erring back to the right way,
And heal the wounded spirit with the balm
Of pity and hold back the cruel hand
That would take the helpless; they whose labors win
The deepest water of his race to feel The power not good words and shed penitence in,
Are good elected agents to bring in The better age. With gladness and with thanks
We witness mercy's triumphs, and our hopes Go forward to the train of glorious years, When a time of clouds of strife, that darker still
And in the face of Heaven, shall roll away.
And, like a calm, sweet sunbeam, love and peace Shall light the dearest walks of human life.
—William Cullen Bryant.

can assure you the pain has almost entirely left me. I can recommend them to every one as the best plaster made. I have tried other me no good), but one of yours has worked like a charm, giving me complete relief, and I have not been troubled with Rheumatism and Kidsider myself cured.
